Anne Armistead - Women Against Abuse

Wednesday, January 11, 2012, 7:00 PM
First Baptist Church, 19 West Main Street, Moorestown, NJ
(left side entrance)

In domestic violence, blame is not equal. Often the courts are overly eager to appear impartial. This may result in an unfair decision that penalizes the abused woman and gives support to the abuser.

Women Against Abuse began as a part-time hotline 35 years ago at a women's center. It has since grown to include a 24-hour emergency hotline, shelter, legal center, transitional housing facility, and administrative office which includes an education and training department. It was the first agency in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to provide comprehensive services to survivors of abuse.

Our speaker, Anne Armistead, has been Staff Attorney with Women Against Abuse for the past 5 years. As a senior member of the legal center, she prosecutes, defends and advises low income survivors of abuse in protection order, custody, and spousal and child support matters. In addition, she trains and collaborates with law enforcement. She will talk to us about her experiences in the Family Court of Philadelphia and the struggle to protect the rights of abused women and families.

*Program includes announcements, refreshments, and letter writing.
Meetings are open to members and non-members.*

President's Message by Jessica Van Liere

Are you guilty of putting yourself last on your priority list? I often find my fellow activists, though productive and passionate, to be completely overscheduled and exhausted. We all have our reasons, all valid, most of them byproducts of the same cultural and legal injustices we are in NOW to change. Still, I hope that as 2012 begins everyone can schedule some regular time to relax and take care of themselves. This can be as simple and inexpensive as taking an hour a week to meet a group of friends for coffee. Findings from a 2010 Brigham Young University study analyzing past health studies on over 300,000 patients found that "Being socially disconnected, (having few good friends or strong family relationships), is equivalent to smoking 15 cigarettes per day and to heavy drinking of six units of alcohol a day. It is also worse for someone's health than avoiding exercise, and twice as bad for one's health as being

Our chapter namesake, Alice Paul, was born 127 years ago on this date. What better way to celebrate her birthday and honor her memory than by supporting current efforts to help pass the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) which Alice authored following her hard-fought battle to get women the right to vote. At a time when most women didn't even graduate from high school, Alice earned three law degrees so that, when she wrote it, "the ERA would say what it ought". What an extraordinary woman she was! See enclosed flyer for more details.

obese.” One of my favorite parts about the HBO special “Gloria: In Her Own Words”, that we screened at our December Program Meeting, is that they show how Gloria Steinem reached a point in her career where she became truly exhausted and had to slow down. It is reassuring to see a superwoman having a human experience. More importantly, we can all learn something from the fact that Steinem continued to stay relevant and successful even after she allowed more time for herself. I wish everyone the very best in the New Year and look forward to what we will accomplish as a chapter!

Now in the Afternoon Update

by, Marion Steinger

On December 7th, Susan Schwel, Director of the Women’s Medical Fund of Philadelphia (WMF), was the guest speaker. This organization is the Philadelphia equivalent of South Jersey NOW’s Women in Need (WIN) Fund – both help low-income women afford abortions by providing a portion of the fee. Ms. Schwel spoke of the many harsh and ugly restrictions on access to abortion in all of the states. She explained that under the new health care law, each state will be able to decide whether abortion coverage can be part of the new insurance exchanges. The restrictions on federal funding for abortion already prevent all federal employees and their dependents, Peace Corps members, the military, and Native American groups from receiving federal monies. Possible new restrictions have the potential to make the situation worse. Low-income women, the group both WMF and the WIN Fund aid, will be the most hard hit. Pennsylvania is a very ‘restrictive’ state, and other states are attempting to pass even more restrictions. As many of you may know, the WMF was the impetus for, and first produced, the play “The Waiting Room,” which was recently produced and performed in South Jersey. To learn more about the Women’s Medical Fund, visit: www.womensmedicalfund.org.

Voters Reject Right Wing

Citizens made their way to the polls on November 8 to vote on a variety of issues. Here are some of the key decisions the voters made (Source: John Nichols, www.thenation.com):

▶ Mississippi voters were asked to amend the state Constitution to define life

“to include every human being from the moment of fertilization, cloning or the functional equivalent thereof.” The general assumption among pundits was that the amendment would be adopted. Instead, it was rejected with relative ease — by a 58–42 margin. “The message from Mississippi is clear,” said Nancy Keenan, president of NARAL Pro-Choice America. “An amendment that allows politicians to further interfere in our personal, private medical decisions, including a woman’s right to choose safe, legal abortion, is unacceptable.”

▶ Ohio voters rejected Governor John Kasich’s assault on collective bargaining protections and public employee unions by an overwhelming 61–39 vote. Said AFL-CIO President Richard Trumka, “Ohio’s working people successfully fought back against lies pushed by shadowy multi-national corporations and their anonymous front groups that attempted to scapegoat public service employees and everyone they serve by assaulting collective bargaining rights.”

▶ Arizona State Senate President Russell Pearce, the author of that state’s draconian anti-immigrant legislation, was removed from office in a recall election that saw the right-wing Republican defeated by moderate Republican Jerry Lewis. Randy Parraz, the co-founder of Citizens for a Better Arizona, the group that organized the recall drive, said, “This election shows that such extremist behavior will not be rewarded, and will be held accountable.”

▶ Maine Governor Paul LePage and his allies eliminated same-day registration rules that made it possible for citizens to register and vote on election day. A petition campaign by Mainers forced a referendum on the issue and, on Tuesday, voters chose by a 61–39 margin to restore same-day registration. “The path of history is clear,” said former Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine. “Our country has consistently marched forward, making our elections more accessible and open and encouraging people to participate.”

OWS — Where Does Feminism Fit? (excerpt)

by Lucinda Marshall, Women’s Media Ctr
As the clarion call of Occupy Wall Street has spread throughout the United States and the world, many feminists have greeted the movement with enthusiasm and the hope that it will be a substantial opportunity to advance many of the issues that we have been working on for so many years. Affordable childcare and unequal paychecks, for example, are most certainly economic issues, and reproductive injustice and the commodification of women’s bodies in the sex trafficking and pornography industries have huge economic ramifications.... Put bluntly, the harms experienced by women as a result of global and national economic policies are, in aggregate, different and often far worse than those experienced by men. Unfortunately, logical as that might be, those who seek to address these topics and insist that they be part of the Occupy agenda are finding themselves confronting many of the same obstacles that women often face outside of the Occupy movement — such issues as safety, sexism, misogynist power structures and a lack of gendered analysis. Women report being harassed and labeled divisive for speaking out and pointing to issues that affect women’s lives. There have been numerous reports of women being physically and sexually assaulted, and of women being shouted down and denied a chance to speak, problems that sound all too familiar to longtime feminist activists working within political, social and progressive movements. In responding to these incidents and formulating ways to address issues within Occupy from a feminist lens, it is worth taking a step back. Wall Street is a manifestation and symbol of the much larger problem of patriarchal control and power that has been plaguing us for thousands of years and depends in large part on the exploitation, subjugation and control of women. If we want to occupy Wall Street in a meaningful way, we also need to confront issues of patriarchy.

As a way to further that broader effort and discussion, the Feminist Peace Network....began a new website called OccupyPatriarchy.org.... We must formulate effective strategies for bringing a feminist perspective to Occupy, one that recognizes that we must address the needs of the 99 percent from a gendered lens.
